

About Stella Medical

We envision a new way of humanizing surgical navigation by offering a user-friendly, small-size navigation system. We believe in the strength of a cost-effective yet precise navigation system. Now in the process of growing our passionate team, we are looking for motivated, entrepreneurial minded TUM students to support us.

Your role for 3-6 months

Your role will be to conduct a company valuation and prepare investment documents for Stella's upcoming financing round. Depending on your individual skills and interests, you will work on the commercial due diligence or financial valuation of Stella Medical. Throughout the project study, you will have the opportunity to work from home or in our fancy office at the Incubator of UnternehmerTUM.

During the project study you will work together with Hasan, our Business Development Manager with a profound background in Corporate Finance and Consulting. Within the scope of this project study, you will not only have the opportunity to apply your theoretical knowledge in entrepreneurial finance but also to learn from best industry practices in Venture Capital.

Your tasks

- Conducting fundamental research and in-depth analysis of the medical device market (Europe and US)
- Identifying growth levers through the research data and use them to derive Stella's optimal business strategy
- Leveraging deep dives and metrics to identify key drivers of the quantitative economic and business trends
- Using your market research to conduct a company valuation of Stella Medical with different approaches

You will be a fundamental part of our business team with high impact. Sounds good?

You are offering these qualifications and experiences

- Ideally studying in fields such as Business Administration, Economics, or comparable subjects
- Good quantitative, analytical, and problem-solving skills
- Hands-on working spirit and ability to thrive in a dynamic and fast changing environment
- Ability to work independently as well as in the team

Flexible starting date: August to November 2021

Duration: 3-6 months
